NOTHING LIKE IT

Its peculiar efficacy is due as much to the process and skill in compounding as to the ingredients themselves. Take it in time. It checks diseases in the outset, or if they be advanced will prove a potent cure.

FOR WHOSE BENEFIT

No Home should be Without It.

It takes the place of a doctor and costly prescriptions. All who lead sedentary lives will find it the best preventive of and cure for Indigestion, Constipation, Headache, Biliousness, Piles and Mental Depression. No loss of time, no interference with business while taking. For children it is most innocent and harmless. No danger from exposure after taking. Cures Colic, Diarrhœa, Bowel Complaints, Feverishness and Feverish Colds. Invalids and delicate persons will find it the mildest Aperient and Tonic they can use. A little taken at night insures refreshing sleep and a natural evacuation of the bowels. A little taken in the morning sharpens the appetite, cleanses the stomach and sweetens the breath.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

"I have been practicing medicine for twenty years and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system."

A CALIFORNIA WINTER.

This lauded sky fulfills its lover's boast
By its perpetual mimicry of spring
But while it marshals all the meadow host
In one unbroken march of blossoming,
Something we miss who otherwhere have found
The treasure of the year's first violet,
Or even the sudden greening of the ground
With swift wrought broidery of cowslips set.
Here is no music like the earliest song
Caroled from vibrant boughs of budded elm;
Here joy, that doth its day too much prolong,
Even with itself itself doth overwhelm.

We pace these level paths with lagging feet;
Rough ways o'ertrodden make smooth ways more sweet;
And spring is cheerless save it catch a last
Keen charm from memories of winter past.

Our window opens toward the song famed land
Of rose rich gardens and unshadowed skies.
Oh, weary prospect! Yes, I understand.
Dear heart, the meaning of your wistful eyes.
They see where our own winter fields outspread
Their long white slopes thin set with frost browned stalks;
Or where snow weighted branches overhead
Transfigure with new grace our winter walks;
Or down the long road, braving the thick storm,
They see the flake flecked pool of ruddy light
That from the dear home ingle, waiting warm,
Flows through black panes into the deep of night.

If heaven were indeed the land they say
Of chilless summer and undarkened day,
How from its fields would we yearn back to thee,
Oh, winter world! oh, days of stress and strife!
Oh, ebbing, flowing, sometimes stormy sea
Of circumstances, of change, of zestful life?
—Katherine Van Harlingen in Harper's.

STRANGE DELUSION.

"Prisoner, rise and look upon the jury. Gentlemen, have you agreed upon your verdict?" It was the clerk of the court who spoke.

"We have."

"And what say you? Do you find the prisoner guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty—of murder in the first degree."

So said the foreman of the jury, and the hush of death overspread the court as the panel was polled, man by man.

The prisoner, a tall, blonde girl, had shot her affianced husband on the street. Her father, a respected merchant of a neighboring city, had engaged Henry North, the most famous criminal lawyer of his day, to defend her. The address to the jury by North had been one of the most sympathetic appeals ever made to a jury. It had touched every tender chord in the human heart. It had appealed to the jurymen as fathers, as brothers and as husbands. Everybody said that Henry North never had been so brilliant, never so magnetic.

And yet he had failed!

The keenest chagrin was written on every line of his face, but as he gathered up his papers he commented solely to himself:

"I knew it would be so!"

Knew what? How could he have foreseen the verdict when every other person in the courtroom had confidently expected an acquittal? What could he have meant?

The great criminal lawyer regained his composure in a moment. He made the usual motion for a new trial, stepped to the side of the convicted murderess, assured her that hope still remained, then shook the long, slender hand of the staring, statuesque woman as she was remanded for sentence. The next instant he was seen rushing hurriedly toward the stairway.

The oyer and terminer courtroom, as everybody knows, is at the head of the long, marble staircase leading toward Broadway.

Hardly a minute later, before the room had cleared, a cry was heard in the outer hall. It was a shriek of agony and horror!

At the foot of the marble steps, gasping for breath, lay the famous advocate, Henry North, the idol of his profession. At the top of the landing North had been seen to reel, and before anybody could reach him he had plunged headlong to the bottom of the flight. Blood rose to his lips, his eyes were wide open, but appeared to be staring at an invisible object. The clammy moisture of death was upon his brow.

The dying man was raised in the arms of a young clerk, as a gaping crowd quickly gathered. He lived only long enough to say:

"He has killed me at last. He was crouching at the head of the stairs and tripped me." Then had come the shriek and the agonizing words: "Keep him off! Go 'way!"

Henry North ceased to breathe.

The death was the sensation of a week. The funeral was one of the largest ever seen in New York. But the mystery surrounding his last words remained. Many theories were advanced to explain them, none of which, to the shame of our common humanity, were creditable to the deceased, though there never had been a shadow upon his name.

I was the clerk who received the last confidences of Henry North. He was my father, and the secret of his life and tragic death had been the mystery of our family. Among his papers was found the following narrative, addressed to me, which after careful consideration I have decided to publish, to refute the calumny cast upon father's name as a lawyer and as a man. The first date is of six months ago, though the final page was undoubtedly written the last morning of his life. It is entitled "The Black Dog:"

"March 15, 1885—Something mysterious came into my life ten years ago today. Its influence upon my career has been such that I feel I must make some record of it, not knowing what may be its future developments. I also feel that I owe it to my dear son to leave some explanation of things that may have appeared strange to him and that may require investigation or defense. Indeed, I have suspected that he has noticed my strange conduct. Of late I observe that he finds an excuse for accompanying me to court and seeks my companionship more than formerly.

"My misfortune arose in this way: When a young lawyer, I was elected to the New York assembly during the reform revolt of 1874 that swept Tilden into the governorship. The session of 1874-5 was an eventful one. Everybody will recall the great struggle with the canal ring, in which I bore a prominent part. Near the close of the session I was asked to introduce a bill. It came from one of my constituents and was framed in the interests of the wool growing farmers in the center of the state. It authorized the killing of all vagrant dogs in counties north of the Harlem river. I presented it without proper consideration, and when the bill came up for final passage I found myself committed in its favor.

"Horace Bunning, of a Hudson river district, rose when the bill was called up, and in order to secure the floor moved to strike out the enacting clause. Then he made one of the most attractive speeches I ever listened to, though every word was a reproach and a humiliation to me. Every sentence of it was so burned into my heart that I am able to reproduce it now. He spoke with deep feeling:

"'Gentlemen—This bill must not pass. I rise here in my place to oppose it—seriously, stubbornly to the last limit of my parliamentary rights—because I have left a friend at home who is vitally interested. In my absence he is the guardian of my family, the companion of my wife and children. He is sleepless in my interests. I trust him and he is worthy of any man's supreme confidence. As a comrade, he never has faltered in his devotion to me. Now that I am honored with a seat in your distinguished body he is no prouder of me than when I was a struggling lawyer seeking my first case. He'd give his life for mine at any moment. Though a devoted slave to me he's a peer of the realm. He's a dog, a noble specimen of his race.

"'I love him. And I say he must not die by the hand of man!

"'Recall the dogs of history. Have you forgotten Llewellen's grand Gelert! Is gone from us all memory of the immortal Barry, of the great St. Bernard, for whom a stately monument is reared at Bern? Are we not told that Ketmir, faithful guardian of the Seven Sleepers of Ephesus was admitted into Paradise by Mohammed! Can we, as lawmakers, overlook the glorious judicial combat to the death between the devoted dog of Aubrey and the murderer of his master? Do we forget that Byron, the prince royal of our English tongue, made for himself a grave at Newstead abbey by the side of his beloved mastiff, Boatswain? And Maera, too, descended from the noblest dogs of all antiquity, was translated to the heavens to become a dog star of the northern sky!

"'Oh, men among you, hang your heads in shame!

"'The dog has shone in song and story since the world began—no living creature so nearly allied to man. Indeed, 'tis said he learned to bark by hearkening to human speech. His dream of life is to serve mankind. His master's heart is the only heaven he knows.

"'No temptation can corrupt him. Friends prove false, but his fidelity endures through life. And if misfortune dire o'ertakes the master the dog alone does not desert. Ah! when comes the end—that last sad scene of all—friends, family, home, all gone, this faithful comrade follows the body to an unmarked grave in potter's field, where prone upon the soft, dark mound he wails a requiem and dies.'

"This speech had a magical effect. It put me in a false position. I loved the dog as well as he, but my unfortunate attitude as sponsor for the bill compelled me to defend it. But I was sorry when it passed by a small majority.

"A few nights after when I came home to my apartments, I found a great, black dog stretched upon the white bearskin before my fire.

"He raised his head and his great, brown eyes stared me full in the face. His was a sympathetic look, but to my imagination, distorted by long brooding on the subject, he had come to reproach me for my act. The animal was sorry for me.

"Naturally, I resented this and ordered him to leave; he lay quite motionless and his great, brown eyes continued to follow me about. I became infuriated and kicked at him viciously. The dog, unmoved still lay unhurt before me.

"I had kicked a spectral dog!

"As I rose upright I saw the glossy, black and clearly outlined form of the crouching animal slowly vanishing. Like smoke it arose before my eyes, enveloping me.

"Next day I saw that dog again! And I have seen him every day during the ten years that have intervened.

"I am sure that other people do not see him; but this animal has become an integral part of my existence. He accompanies me on the street, into the assembly chamber, into the committee room and back to my lodgings.

"I have been carrying a cane, but I have had to leave the stick at home because the dog was constantly crowding between it and my leg; and when friends were walking with me they were unable to understand my involuntary exclamations of annoyance.

"Yet, strange as it may appear, I began to grow fond of my spectral associate. Companionship is natural to man; and we know in the light of history and experience it is life itself to the canine race. Our days passed very happily together. We led the same regular lives. I generally walked to my office; but when the weather was bad I always selected the best route out of consideration for my devoted companion. At times I even took a carriage on his account. His care became my enthusiasm.

"Resuming my law practice with renewed energy, I was gratified to find that the dog accompanied me into court and curled himself up under my table while I was trying a case. After a few experiences I observed a very curious fact, namely, that the animal always left the room before the jury returned, if the verdict were to be adverse to my client. At first this act suggested to me a tender regard for my feelings—a desire not to witness my chagrin at defeat. As the thought developed in my mind, I frequently detected myself making a speech to the dog instead of to the jury. I watched his face with more care than I did that of any man in the courtroom. I hoped to read there a sure indication of the verdict. But he always maintained the same attentive attitude, and gave no sign until he left the room. Then he always awaited me outside the door, lovingly licked my hand and accompanied me home.

"As my criminal practice rapidly grew I daily studied his conduct more closely. I had already decided that his judgment was infallible. He never erred. He appeared to understand law—the technicalities, rather than the equities of a case. Ah! what a judge he'd make—my dog!

"Yet, the appalling thing about this delusion is that it has changed my whole life. I was married before the misfortune overtook me, but I have become estranged in my home. I lead a solitary life. I have given up my clubs, my friends and all my social habits. I have been and am in constant fear that somebody else will discover that I am followed by a black dog; that I am cursed by a delusion; that I am not a single entity, but have a demon—gentle, if you please, but an old Greek demon—bound to me. That would be horrible! I'd have to kill myself, and I'm afraid of death.

"How is it all going to end?"

Note by the Son—I do not omit any quotation from my father's diary during the six months that followed the extract just given, though there are pages of the most agonizing and pitiful narrative, in which he lays bare his daily life so fully—his hopes, his sufferings, with rare gleams of joy—that it seems profanation to the dead to make them public. There are constant references to the dog, generally in a friendly spirit, but less frequently is he spoken of with enthusiasm. On the last page, evidently written before he left for the courtroom on the fatal morning, I find this:

"Sept. 18, 1885—Since the Katie King murder case has been on trial I have noticed a change in the dog's demeanor. He has become tricky, where before he was sympathetic. He has grown vicious. There is a treacherous leer in his great brown eyes. I have detected him twice in the act of tripping me! Slipping stealthily before me, he will crouch in my path. Twice have I escaped terrible falls, almost by a miracle. His temper has wholly changed. He sulks and snaps at times. He hasn't injured me yet, but I am beginning to fear him. It is more than fear, it is mortal terror! But I hope for a verdict today. Then I'll rest. A trip to Europe may clear my brain of the clouds that darken it. I'll go where the cursed beast cannot follow me."

I, his son and private secretary, add my dear father's last words, as I held him in my arms, to make his narrative complete:

"He has killed me at last. He was crouching at the head of the stairs—tripped me." To which should be added his agonizing appeal, not heard by other ears than mine: "Take him away! Keep him off! He has me by the throat! And I had forgiven him."—Julius Chambers in Once a Week.

Oil from Salmon Heads.

Within the last few years the manufacture of oil from salmon heads has been undertaken with profit. The heads are bought from the canneries at the rate of 1,000 for one dollar. One factory produces as much as 18,000 gallons a year, worth twenty-four cents a gallon. The heads are cooked by steam and the oil is run off the tops of the vats. One thousand heads make from thirty to thirty-five gallons of oil. It is not disposed of by itself as a commercial article, but is mixed as an adulterant with other and more costly oils.—Washington Star.

MRS. GRAHAM'S
CUCUMBER and ELDER FLOWER CREAM,
Is not a cosmetic in the sense in which that term is popularly used, but permanently beautifies. It creates a soft, smooth, clear, velvety skin, and by daily use gradually makes the complexion several shades whiter. It is a constant protection from the effects of sun and wind, and prevents sun burns and freckles, and blackheads will not come while you use it. It cleanses the face far better than soap and water, makes fellows and builds up the skin tissues and thus prevents the formation of wrinkles. It gives the freshness, clearness and smoothness of the skin that you had when a little girl. Every lady, young or old ought to use it, as it gives a more youthful appearance to any lady, and that permanently. It contains no acid, powder or alkali and is as harmless as dew and as nourishing to the skin as dew is to the flower. Price $1.00, at all druggists and hair-dressers, or at Mrs. Gervaise Graham's establishment, 105 Post Street San Francisco, where she treats ladies for all blemishes of the face and figure. H. H. GRANICE . . . . . EDITOR

THE SUPERVISORSHIP.

Just at this time both Democrats and Republicans of Sonoma and Vallejo Townships are engaged in discussing and looking up available men to fill the office of Supervisor. This is as it should be It is one of the most important offices in the county and it behooves tax-payers to cast politics aside this year, when it comes to chosing Supervisors, to the end that the financial affairs of the county be managed by honest and capable men.

During the past four years extravagance and waste has characterized the Supervisors of this county. The affairs of our people appear to have been managed for the most part in the interest of a few people in Santa Rosa, where most of the money wrung out of tax-payers is dispensed to the favored ones. If we except a few thousand dollars expended annually on the roads in Sonoma and Vallejo Townships, very few dollars of the many thousands contributed by the tax-payers of those townships for the support of the county government ever finds its way back into the pockets of those tax-payers, either in the way of supplies furnished the county or public improvements. No such good things fall to their lot.

Why should not the artizans, mechanics, merchants and farmers of the other four Supervisor districts have an equal chance with Santa Rosa in the matter of securing a portion of the trade of the county? We will tell you why. It is because when the individual members of the Board of Supervisors, who ought to have the welfare of their particular sections at heart, go to Santa Rosa and mix with its people they, forget for the time being, their home people and the interests of the particular section they represent, with the result that the county seat gets, for the most part, the benefit of the Sonoma county government at the expense of a majority of the tax-payers who support that government.

Now this is not as it should be. Sonoma county has five Supervisors. Of these Santa Rosa is only entitled to one, but for all that she generally secures the whole five, in so far as the county patronage is concerned. In other words, Santa Rosa with but one Supervisor and contributing but a small share of the taxes, controls the other four, and gets the benefit of the years tax levy, while the other Supervisor districts, who ought to have the say in the matter, to use a slang phrase get "souped."

Now, the INDEX-TRIBUNE is in favor of Supervisors, it matters not whether they be Republicans or Democrats, for politics has nothing what-ever to do with this matter in so far as tax-payers are concerned, who will look after the particular interests of their sections and do the right thing by the county seat at the same time. In other words we do not believe in bleeding all the other Supervisor districts in the county to the end that Santa Rosa gets away with the tax money. Let all the districts have a fair whack at it, so that tax-payers all over the county may get their share in return for the vast sums paid to the tax-gatherer annually to support the county government.

Sonoma and Vallejo Townships, and for that matter every supervisor district in the county, needs a representative in the strictest sense of the word. In other words, give us a Supervisor that will look out for the interests of Sonoma county in general and the interests of Sonoma and Vallejo Townships in particular.

PURE FOOD IN CONGRESS.

Action which has Resulted in the Official Determination of the Best Baking Powder.

The act of Congress authorizing the examination of baking powders has resulted in a most unprecedented compliment to the Royal Baking Powder. The tests wefe made in the Government Laboratory at Washington, and the official report shows that the Royal is superior to all others in leavening strength—being over 30 per. cent. above the average. The report also shows the purity of the Royal Baking Powder and the wholesomeness of its ingredients.

This is probably the highest compliment of an official character ever paid to a proprietary article, though no more than the great army of baking powder consumers would expect in behalf of their old friend and favorite.

The result of the official examination, as thus determined, will, of course, make the "Royal" the standard for Government purchases.

In the Nick of Time.

In the nick of time to stop the course of bladder and kidney complaints is when the organs concerned exhibit a tendency to grow inactive. The healthful impulse toward activity that they receive from Hostetter's Stomach Bitters rescues them from impending danger, and averts such dangerous maladies as Bright's disease and diabetes. Sluggishness of the kidneys increases a liability to chronic rheumatism, gout and dropsy, and since the blood is filtered by these organs in its passage through them, the operation of the Bitters serves a doubly happy purpose. The medicine acts without exciting, like the fiery stimulants of commerce. Malarial, dyspeptic, constipated and nervous invalids are thoroughly relieved by it. Since the advent of that shocking malady, la grippe, it has been widely demonstrating its usefulness as a curative and preventive of it.

The best offer in Sonoma county is at Warren's Gallery at El Verano. He will make you one dozen fine cabinet pictures of yourself and a 14x17 crayon, all for the small sum of $5. Come one, come all.

Thin or gray hair and bald heads, so displeasing to many people as marks of age, may be averted for a long time by using Hall's Hair Renewer.

REMARKABLE INCIDENT.

A Lecturer Discovers His Danger and Loses His Life—A Terrible Warning to Others.

It is a scene in the lecture-room of a medical college in New Orleans. The professor is lecturing before an intelligent class of medical students. He is describing the human body, its defects and the danger by which it is surrounded. In order to illustrate it he has fluids from the human body, which he is subjecting to chemical tests.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I have described to you the appearance of the human fluid in a diseased state; I will now show you how the same fluid appears in a healthy state," and he subjected his own to the test. As he held it up to the light for a moment, his hand trembled, he caught his breath, he paled and exclaimed: "Gentlemen, I have just made a most horrible discovery; I myself have Bright's disease of the kidneys."

In less than one year he was dead.

The above dramatic and strictly true incident shows the terrible danger and mysterious nature of this modern disease, which may well be called the demon of the present century. It steals into the system like a thief, manifests its presence by the commonest symptoms and fastens itself upon the system before the victim is aware. It is nearly as hereditary as consumption, quite as common and fully as fatal. Entire families, inheriting it from their ancestors, have died, yet none of the number knew or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Hundreds of people die daily by what is called heart disease, apoplexy, paralysis, spinal complaint, rheumatism, pneumonia and other common diseases, when in reality it is Bright's disease of the kidneys. These are solemn facts, but all the more serious because of their solemnity.

There has never been but one remedy known for the cure of Bright's disease, or even for its relief, and that remedy has become the most popular of any preparation known to the world. It is Warner's Safe Cure. It has taken men, and women, too, who were in the lowest stages and restored them to perfect health and strength. It will invariably check the first stages of this terrible disease, if taken in time. It is indorsed by physicians, approved by scientists and used by the best people in the land. It is a scientific preparation and owes its popularity wholly to its power. It can be procured of any reliable dealer, but great care should be exercised to secure the genuine and not permit any unscrupulous dealer to sell anything in its place.

An Apparent Mystery.

Bingo—I went to a dry goods store the other day to settle my wife's account, and, by jove, do you know, she didn't owe a cent!

Kingley—Great Scott! What was the matter?

Bingo—She had transferred it to another store.—Cloak Review.

Well Paid.

"You gave Hicks a receipt for his bill in full. Did he pay you, Snip?"

"Oh, no, sir," replied the tailor; "but he gave me so many novel excuses for not paying that I have staved off my own creditors, and I thought he ought to be rewarded."—Harper's Bazar.

A Not Unusual Experience.

Railroads in the West.

In 1860 there were only 2,100 miles of railway in the country west of the Mississippi. Today the railroad mileage west of the Mississippi is 62,612 miles. In 1860 there were only 263 miles of railroad west of the Missouri. Of these California boasted 23 miles and Oregon 3½ miles. Today we have 35,450 miles of railroad in the states and territories west of the Missouri, or 4,815 miles more than the entire railroad mileage of the United States in 1860.—Edward Rosewater's Omaha Address.

Cures Others

Will cure You, is a true statement of the action of AYER'S Sarsaparilla, when taken for diseases originating in impure blood; but, while this assertion is true of AYER'S Sarsaparilla, as thousands can attest, it cannot be truthfully applied to other preparations, which unprincipled dealers will recommend, and try to impose upon you, as "just as good as Ayer's." Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla and Ayer's only, if you need a blood-purifier and would be benefited permanently. This medicine, for nearly fifty years, has enjoyed a reputation, and made a record for cures, that has never been equaled by other preparations. AYER'S Sarsaparilla eradicates the taint of hereditary scrofula and other blood diseases from the system, and it has, deservedly, the confidence of the people.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

"I cannot forbear to express my joy at the relief I have obtained from the use of AYER'S Sarsaparilla. I was afflicted with kidney troubles for about six months, suffering greatly with pains in the small of my back. In addition to this, my body was covered with pimply eruptions. The remedies prescribed failed to help me. I then began to take AYER'S Sarsaparilla, and, in a short time, the pains ceased and the pimples disappeared. I advise every young man or woman, in case of sickness resulting from impure blood, no matter how long standing the case may be, to take AYER'S Sarsaparilla."—H. L. Jarmann, 33 William st., New York City.

Tom Geary has been renominated by the Democrats of this the First District for Congressman. Tom has made a good Congressman for California, "even if he is a Democrat." We deny, however, as has been asserted by one of our cotemporaries, that a job has been put up on Mr. Geary by the Republican machine to defeat him.

The weather the past few days has been excessively hot. The thermometer on Wednesday and Thursday registered in the afternoon 100 degrees in the shade. The warm spell, however, while disagreeable to our people, has had a tendency to advance the growth of fruit and vegetables, which received a serious setback by the remarkable cool weather of March and April.

COLLAPSE OF A PORCH.

Narrow Escape of Two Little Girls.

Yesterday afternoon at half-past one o'clock a heavy porch in front of the Poppe flats on First street East, occupied by M. F. Mulhaupt and Mrs. Gaines, fell with a crash. The porch, which was fifty feet in length and eight feet wide, was held up by iron supports, which were apparently too weak to bear the heavy weight. When the structure gave way two little girls, daughters of Mr. Mulhaupt, were sitting on the steps of their father's residence, and narrowly escaped being killed. All that saved them was the iron supports which held up the porch. These were stronger at the northern end of the building where the children were sitting than those at the southern end. When the structure fell that part of it directly over the little girls fell outward while the other end fell inward, and the children escaped unscathed. The damage to the property was less than $200.

The Stage Robbery.

The stage running between Cazadero and Sea View was "held up" by highwaymen Tuesday morning as it was going through Turner canyon. There were two robbers and while one of them covered the driver and passengers with a rifle, the other relieved the passengers of all their cash and valuables. The mail and express were not disturbed, which seems to give rise to the theory that the job was the work of amateurs. Sheriff Mulgrew and Sheriff Stanley, the latter of Mendocino county, are making every effort to apprehend the bandits and from last accounts have a fair chance of surrounding them. Sheriff Mulgrew has six men out and a vigorous search is being made.—Santa Rosa Republican.

Cherries Ripe.

The first shipment of cherries from this valley for the season was recently made by A. Brown of Pioneer Grove, two miles northwest of Sonoma. A consignment of cherries from the above farm was made again this week which netted in San Francisco nearly $2 50 per box of ten pounds. The cherries from Sonoma Valley were about the first to make their appearance in the San Francisco market, proving conclusively that the soil and climate of this section are peculiarly adapted to the cultivation of cherries as well as grapes. If any one doubts this assertion we would refer them to the cherry orchards of A. D Lowell, A. Brown, Robt. Hall, Robt Howe and others in this valley.

Severely Burned.

The child of Mr. and Mrs. Goodman, living on Orchard street, fell into a pail of boiling water Saturday afternoon and one of its arms was badly scalded. The little one suffers intensely, but it is not thought any permanent injury will result.—Santa Rosa Democrat.

A Tale About a Cat, or a Cat's Tail.

A prominent business man of Sonoma, who values his time at so much a second has a maltese cat in his office, of which he is very fond. One day last week while holding the door open for the cat to go out, it struck him that half of his time was lost in waiting for the tail to escape; he then got down to figures, with the following result: He opened that door at least ten times a day to let the cat in and out; it took him one minute each time, and with 300 working days in the year he found that he had been standing with that door knob in his hand for 50 hours each year—five whole working days!—and nothing to show for it. He imm diately ordered his porter to chop off the cat's tail, and he now opens the door and slams it in a jiffy without danger of hurting the cat, and very little loss of time to himself. This is only one instance. Another instance of his wisdom is that when he requires any printing done he does not chase himself down town, neither does he send his clerk all over creation getting estimates; experience has taught him that it is only necessary to send his orders to the Sonoma INDEX TRIBUNE and that is the end of it; he knows perfectly well that we will turn it out promptly, neatly and reasonably. This man is wise—time is money. Moral: Chop off your cat's tail and get your printing at this office. Perhaps some of you who read this think it is time we chopped off this tale. All right! Remember one thing, when you want anything in the line of printing you can save time and money by coming to us.

How I Felt.

Why, two years ago I was just about crazy, and no wonder that my wife and children were afraid of me. You just want to suffer with neuralgia with no relief as I did until I used Sulphur Bitters. They cured me, and now my wife says I am as meek as a lamb.—Robert Davis, American House, Boston.

With a record like Simmons Liver Regulator all should use it for the liver, kidneys and bowels.

A TAX-PAYER.

He is After Somebody's Scalp, and Don't You Forget It.

MR. EDITOR:

In your issue of the 14th inst. the sentiments of a disgusted citizen, in regard to the first memorable meeting of the new Board of City Trustees last week, when some of its members endeavored to immortalize themselves and show to the world what a few superior minds can accomplish, attracted my attention.

I am sorry to say that your correspondent only scrutinized and attacked one proceeding that came up before that body, although several of the resolutions introduced were just as obnoxious as the one to which objection was made.

You, Mr. Editor, in your account of that meeting eulogized Trustee Seipp for introducing a resolution having for its purpose the abolishment of the Sewer Fund and converting the revenue of that fund into the General Fund for the purpose of building a cheap wooden bridge over the creek known as the Duhring crossing.

That resolution asserts that those much-abused people who would be benefited by the building of the bridge have been cheated out of their rights by former Boards of Trustees.

Now, let me say that the Sewer Fund was raised for a most commendable purpose, the betterment of the sanitary condition of Sonoma, and would have been applied for the purposes intended long ago had not the retiring Board of City Trustees been misled into believing the legal objections raised by the city's self-constituted counselor, who seems to have a particular antipathy against anything looking toward the health of the town, and who has always opposed the introduction of a sewerage system. I hope, however, that the new Board will commence the good work of sewering the town without delay, to the end that the health of Sonoma be protected and an epidemic guarded against.

In regard to building a bridge at the Duhring crossing, the old Board of City Trustees, while favoring the project, objected to the erection of a cheap, wooden, taxeating structure which was advocated only by a few old fossils.

The old Board intended to build a substantial stone bridge and thought it best to wait one year longer before commencing work on a durable structure, as there was not sufficient money in the treasury to carry out the work. They might have wasted money on a cheap wooden affair, but thought it best to make other and much-more needed improvements, inasmuch as Duhring crossing was in a fair condition, and there would be little inconvenience for those citizens who would be benefited by the building of the bridge to wait one year longer for the more substantial structure.

MAIN STREET

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE

SATURDAY, MAY 21, 1892.

THEIR SCHEMES WORKED WELL.

She Raised Her Voice, He Raised a Row and Both Raised Some Money.

It was a demure looking little woman that walked into the ladies' cabin of a Pennsylvania ferryboat a few evenings ago and took a seat in the cabin that fast filled up. A respectable looking man who followed the woman took a seat beside her, and unfolding a newspaper was to all appearances quickly engrossed in reading.

The jingle bell had sounded and the ferryboat had just cleared the slip when the woman commenced singing in a rather melodious voice. The passengers ceased talking and those who were reading dropped their papers and all eyes centered on the demure little woman, who evidently intended making an appeal to the charitable.

The man who came into the cabin behind the woman dropped his paper also and eyed the singer sharply for an instant. She paid no attention to him, and at last, in a voice clearly heard by the passengers near about, the man asked the woman to stop singing, as she was disturbing the passengers and him in particular.

The request, or rather command, attracted the attention of those who heard it and they looked upon the man with expressions of disgust. But the woman paid no heed to the insolent remark and continued with the little song. The man left his seat and went to the forward deck. He reappeared with a deck hand, who assisted the man in getting through the crowd and to where the little woman still sat singing. "I want you to make this woman stop her noise," said the man, now apparently aroused. "It's against the rules. She's evidently going to ask for alms." The woman had stopped singing and was now looking innocently at the man and the deck hand.

From two or three passengers came the cry of "Shame!" but the man whose nerves were so shaken by the woman's voice and who wanted the rules enforced, seemed to pay no attention to the remarks until the woman addressed him.

"I'm sorry to have disturbed you, sir," she said rather loudly, "but I thought I might be able to gather a little money, which I need."

"Your singing did annoy me exceedingly, but if you are needy I'm sorry I stood in the way of your obtaining money and I'll help you," he said, taking off his hat and dropping a dollar bill in it. Then he started around the passengers, and one after another dropped silver pieces in the hat until a considerable fund had quickly grown. This the man transferred to the woman, and reseated himself and buried his face behind his paper.

The ferryboat had reached her destination and the passengers left the boat. Five minutes later the man and woman stood on the corner of Liberty and Church streets.

"How much did we get?" the man asked.

"Nearly $5," she replied.

"Well, let's try the South ferry now," he said, and off they walked together.—New York Herald.

David Copperfield as a Child.

Dickens was never more successful in painting a child than in David Copperfield; but David is not a specimen of commonplace childhood. It is needful to remember this if we are to appreciate him properly. From the very first he has about him the air of genius. All children, unless they be abnormally dull and stupid, are full of fancies. They breathe the atmosphere of poetry. They see wonders in the heavens above and in the earth beneath. Tragedy and comedy are ever chasing each other over the stage of their existence. Now they are in the depths of despair; now it would seem as if they and joy were inseparable companions.—National Review.

A Japanese Vine.

The kudzu vine is used in Japan as a forage plant. Medicine is made from its roots. Flour also is made from its roots, which is as nutritive as that furnished by the potato; it is obtained by simply grinding in water, and the starch falls to the bottom. The peeled stems are made into cloth. The roots grow to an enormous size. The top dies to the ground sometimes when it seems like an herbaceous plant. It is extremely valuable for rapidly covering anything in one season besides being always interesting to the lover of the wonderful, on account of its rapid growth.—Meehan's Monthly.

Long Distance Photography.

Long distance photography is rendered quite successful by a camera with a telescope objective, which consists of a concave lens of short focus and a convex lens of considerable length of focus. These are put at a certain distance apart, depending on the difference of the two foci. By the laws of optics this arrangement projects an inverted image of an object at a long distance from the lenses.—New York Times.

Selfish Parents.

Small Boy—Mamma, when will there be another war?

Mamma—Never, I hope.

Small Boy—Huh! You and papa saw a great big war when you was young, an now you don't care whether us children has any fun or not.—Good News.

How Unpleasant

it is to see a beautiful child's face disfigured with vile humors bursting through the skin in pimples, blotches, and sores, and sadder still, when the young and innocent are laughed at and twitted in all such cases. Parents should give them that good and pure remedy, Sulphur Bitters, which will search and drive out of the blood every particle of humor.—Health Gazette.

Hunting Lions.

Referring to lion shooting, Mr. Inverarity, a member of the Bombay bar, says it is a very fascinating pursuit if conducted in the proper manner, which is to track the animal to where he is lying. At the end of the track, which may last for several hours, the eyes suddenly fall on a lion sitting in the dense gloom of a bush a few feet off, or sometimes it leads into a thicket of thorns that cannot be penetrated, when the best plan is to set fire to it and stand at the other end.

Mr. Inverarity says he only once found one sitting in the open—a lioness with a well grown cub. They were sitting on the open sand under a small thorn tree. So well does their color harmonize with their surroundings that he tracked to within four yards of them without seeing them, and would not have seen them then if they had not got up. On another occasion his men pointed to a lioness he was tracking crouching in the grass a few yards off, but, although he looked, he could not see her till she moved her ears.—London Times.

A Sly Diplomatist.

During the Berlin congress Bismarck gave a banquet to the representatives of the foreign powers, the watchword being, "Not a word of politics!" Nevertheless, the late Alexander Rhangabe, the wily Greek diplomatist, found an opportunity of giving expression to the wish that lay near his heart and that of his fellow countrymen. The bill of fare, like the music played during the banquet, in some sort reflected the international character of the occasion. There was one item which was christened with the name of Macedonia. When this dish—a kind of vegetable—was handed around, Rhangabe declined.

"Now, your excellency," said Bismarck, who sat opposite, "Why don't you take a little Macedonia?"

To which his excellency replied, to the general amusement of the company: "Only a little, your highness. I should like to take the whole."—Ephemeris.

An Alloy Statesman.

The reporter was trying to get an opinion from a very diplomatic congressman who was on the fence as to currency.

"Are you in favor of a silver currency?" inquired the quill.

"I did not say I was, did I?" was the evasive answer.

"Are you in favor of gold then?"

"Did I say so?" and the congressman winked.

"Well, what the dickens are you?" asked the reporter bluntly.

"Suppose," responded the statesman carefully, "that you set me down for the present as an alloy."—Detroit Free Press.

Praised the Wrong Girl.

Cholly—And you made no pwog wess with Miss Flyte at all?

Chappie—No; she tweated me vewy coolly.

Cholly—Good gracious! Didn't you talk to her, pwaise her looks and so forth?

Chappie—I didn't have couwage to pwaise her looks, dontcherknow. I haven't been long enough acquainted with her. But I told her that I thought her sister was vewy pwetty. Then she said good night, and walked off and left me.—New York Press.

The Lost Sheep.

A Walla Walla (Wash.) man, about a year ago, started a man out with a band of sheep on the range. A few days ago he received the following from him: "If you want me to remain here any longer you'll have to get another band of sheep; them's all gone."—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Origin of the Christmas Tree.

What is the origin of the Christmas tree? This question has been much debated. It has been identified with the cross of Christian tradition and with the Yule log of pagan antiquity. M. de Gubernatis has contended that it is a reminiscence of solar mythology, and other savants have elaborately developed other theories more or less fantastic. Among the most probable, however, is the suggestion of Palus Cassel that it is a Jewish emblem in disguise. Dr. Cassel points out, in the first place, that Hanucah and Christmas occur very closely together in the calendar. He then reminds us that both are feasts of lights, and that the menorah or candlestick used by the Jews on Hanucah is frequently carved with representations of leaves, flowers and fruits, which give it a distant resemblance to a tree.
